

ARCHIVES
FSU LIBRARY

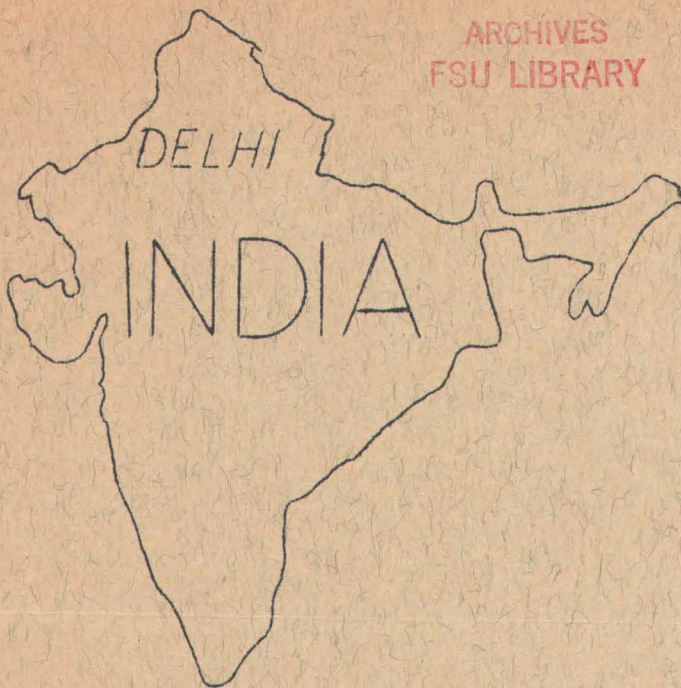

FLORIDA STATE UNIVERSITY

LIBRARY SCHOOL

PRESENTS

NOTED TEACHER, LIBRARIAN AND AUTHOR

FROM DELHI, INDIA

OCTOBER 21 and 22, 1958

On Tuesday and Wednesday, October 21 and 22 Dr. S. R. Ranganathan, noted teacher, librarian, and author from Delhi, will be here as the guest of the Library School. Following is a listing of his scheduled lectures, all of which are open to the public. We particularly call your attention to the Wednesday evening assembly in the Library Lecture Hall at which Dr. Ranganathan will talk on the subject for which he is recognized internationally. His scholarly system of classifying the information in books known as the colon classification is designed to show the uses and relationships of this subject matter rather than attempting to compartmentalize it. We hope that you and FSU students will feel free to attend any of these lectures.

Tuesday, October 21

9:30 A.M. (L.S. 428 class, Philosophies of Librarianship) "The Five Laws of Library Science." Room 31, Library

Wednesday, October 22

10:00 A.M. (L.S. 425 class, Classification and Cataloging) "The Colon Classification." Room 44, Library

11:00 A.M. (L.S. 565 and 429, Reference classes) "Documentation." Library 37

7:30 P.M. General Address: "Library Classification and the Requirements of Academic Disciplines." LIBRARY LECTURE HALL

Co-sponsored by SOLTAS (Library School student club)

REMEMBER THESE DATES

