

That fine display of human nature, the Irish Giant, still engages the attention of the public, and is daily honoured with the inspection of persons of great abilities, who, charmed at the sight of so amazing a curiosity, behold him with a pleasure, which words seem wanting to express. He continues to be seen at a commodious apartment, at No. 30, in St. James's-street, a few days longer.